Can solar paint power a cargo container?

Cargo containers might power refrigeration units through solar-painted surfaces. Aircraft could use solar paint on wings and fuselage to supplement power systems. The evolution of solar paint technology promises to reshape our approach to renewable energy.

How does solar paint work?

Take a moment to visualize the technology behind this innovation. Solar paint works like a liquid solar panel. Think of it as millions of tiny solar cells suspended in a paintable solution. Inside each layer of this special paint, you'll find semiconducting materials that spring into action when sunlight hits them.

What is solar paint?

Solar paint, also known as photovoltaic paint, is a liquid coating that can capture energy from sunlight and convert it into electricity - similar to how traditional solar panels work, but in a paint-like form. At its core, solar paint contains tiny particles of semiconducting materials suspended in a liquid solution.

What can solar paint do for You?

The transportation sector offers perhaps the most innovative applications: Electric vehicles coated with solar paint could extend their range by generating power while parked or driving. Cargo containers might power refrigeration units through solar-painted surfaces. Aircraft could use solar paint on wings and fuselage to supplement power systems.
